From the Editor...

Many of our gymnasts, participants, instructors and leaders are prepping for exhibitions and competitions during this season, and to that I say break a leg! This is always my favorite time of the Sokol year. Uniting with friends, being at (or striving to get to—at least in my case) the top of your game, and having a blast bringing it all together.

Let's all remember we are together as one as we navigate these waters and the journey that lies ahead—in Sokol and the gymnastics community at large. And to all the predators in the world today, guess what, #TimesUp #OneSokol

The Presidential Address

The Sokol Eye – Sokolským Okem

The message I write to you today comes from the heart and with deep sorrow. As many of you know there has been a heinous crime committed to many gymnasts in the USA. Their testimonies and the psychological effects of the abuse are immense and will have lifelong affects. We hurt for the victims of this crime and we are hurting for our gymnastics community. This crime resonates loudly to our organization as well. American Sokol, an organization that founded the organized sport of gymnastics in the USA, cannot turn a blind eye thinking we are immune to this situation and we must be sure we are doing everything possible to provide a safe environment in our gyms.

For over 150 years gymnastics has been one of our largest programs. Our gyms have always taken necessary steps to assure safety in every way. With the recent set of crimes, we know we must be aware and diligent to look more closely at the policies and procedures we have in place that will protect our children, members, coaches and volunteers. During the past four years, our National Organization started to provide assistance and financial support to our Units for background checks of their employees and volunteers. Recently, we have investigated different ongoing educational programs for our coaches and volunteers that will provide valuable training in sexual abuse prevention and awareness. This important training is designed to educate on how to recognize and report abuse. It is also important to note that the program will also train our leaders how to disclose neglect or any troubling information. We will begin offering this program in the coming months. The ultimate responsibility of seeing that these programs are available and that we report such cases to the proper authorities falls on our leaders; the Presidents, Directors and the Coaches. This topic will not stop with one new program or solution, but we, our Executive Board and Board of Governors, will continue to educate ourselves on ways we can prepare our gyms to be the safe environment we promise to anyone that walks though our doors.

Many of you know my Spartan connection, and I want to express that I am extremely disappointed in the leaders that I trusted at my alma mater, Michigan State University, and the way the abuse reports were handled. I am also disappointed in our trusted USAG organization that we have been tied to for decades. How do we move forward from here?

We must take this situation, learn, and do everything we can to make sure this doesn't happen within our organization. We are Sokols and we are strong. Sokol deserves accolades for all of their successes. Sokols everywhere should be allowed and proud to continue to focus on our great programs, love our gyms and to love Sokol. There is no better time to realize that we, as ONE SOKOL together, can help the healing process begin and bring happiness to the gymnastics world again.

Our hearts and love go out to the victims and our brothers and sisters in the gymnastics community.

Ať žije Sokol! ~ Long Live Sokol!

COURTNEY BENSON

Sokol Minnesota Women's Director & Western District Men's Physical Director

Courtney Benson, current head women's coach and instructor with Sokol Minnesota, was not born into Sokol or married into Sokol; Sokol Minnesota was fortunate to "find" Courtney, and we are thrilled that we did. She has embraced Sokol's philosophy and is an outstanding ambassador for Sokol Minnesota.

As a high energy child, Courtney's parents sought an outlet for her energy and enrolled her in dance classes. Courtney needed more of a challenge. She had a friend from dance that also participated in gymnastics, and through her friend's recommendation, started at KidSport gymnastics when she was 6 years old, taking to the sport immediately. She grew up competing at meets across Minnesota as part of the MAGA program, and by 7th grade, she transitioned to her hometown high school gymnastics team in Winona, MN, and contributed as a varsity all-around competitor. Her final years of high school, she competed USAG as a Level 10 competitor, and her involvement in the sport did not end there.

Although she would have qualified as a Division 1 (D1) gymnast, she opted to compete on Hamline University's gymnastics team vs. the U of MN for a few reasons: she didn't want a sport she loved to feel like a "job" through the additional rigor that often comes with a scholarship; she wanted to focus on her studies, including any internship possibilities that would require missing practice when necessary, and she had known the Hamline gymnastics coach for years through his connection to KidSport. There were numerous gymnastics highlights during her four years at Hamline, here are just a few: Courtney started every meet in every event (competing all-around, all the time!); qualified for D3 nationals in all four events, all four years; was named to the 1st All American Team on vault, beam, and floor on several different occasions, and ultimately won a National Championship Title on floor in her junior year; qualified for D1 regionals (and competed with an injured foot at that). She stayed true to her reasons for attending Hamline, and as a result received the D3 Outstanding Senior award and was recognized by the NCAA as one of the Top 30 candidates for Woman of the Year, both of which focus on academics, service, and leadership (in addition to athletics). Much like Courtney found Hamline through her coach at KidSport, Sokol MN "found" Courtney through her coach at Hamline. We were very much in need of coaches to revamp our gymnastics program. We struck gold.

Courtney coached at Sokol MN throughout her four years at Hamline and since her graduation has assumed the role as head women's coach and instructor. Not only has Courtney taken on more and more responsibility for the gymnastics program, she has elevated the quality of instruction by sharing her knowledge, technical expertise, and passion for the sport. She has also applied her business skills to expand programming and raise awareness; furthermore, she believes in the value of mentoring her instructors. Courtney embraces Sokol gymnastics because Sokol is unique in that it is "about a sense of community, we cultivate a sense of belonging, and offer more than just gymnastics. There are educational and cultural aspects of our organization that add so much more to the overall experience". Sokol is also "much more flexible and adaptable with respect to program participation, welcoming all skill levels and abilities. Our focus is on enjoying time in the gym, learning important life lessons like goal setting, all while building lasting relationships with teammates and coaches. Overall, I think we teach dedication – that hard work pays off – with the hope that our gymnasts apply that same mentality throughout life and succeed as a result."

Courtney, in embracing the Sokol philosophy, has been a big part of building our Sokol community. Sokol MN is proud and excited to have "found" a Rising Star that will continue the Sokol tradition.

BOI Report from January 2018 Meeting

The following information is a recap of the National Board of Instructors January meeting.

COS 2018 Slet

- Discussed various calisthenics performances for the 2018 Slet in Prague.
- Sis. M. Fiordelis asked for leaders who are going to Prague for each cal to represent those American Sokol members who will be performing in Prague. Specific placements for those performing calcs will need to be made.
 - Sis. K. Barcal will be in charge of American Sokol members in Prague parade as well as All Sokol Number Stage Performance.
 - Sis. Fiordelis asked Bro. Mike Dropka to be in charge of Men's Borci number and will ask Otto Notzl (Pacific) to be in charge of Princezna Republika (Loyal Guard).
 - Still need someone for Zenobrani (perhaps someone from DA Sokol as they have the most participants).
 - Some are performing Cesta (women's); this is not one recommended by BOI but certainly members can perform. Again Pacific District has largest contingency and they have been in contact with author; they are willing to continue this role.
- Flag bearers for the parade and performance will be determined once in Prague. ASO parade or performance uniforms will be worn for parade.
- Sis. J. LoGiudice will send out a reminder for Uniform orders for Prague; the deadline is January 20, 2018.

Winter Slet Update

- The Winter Slet had a successful weekend. Members attending were from the Chicago area, Sokol Detroit, Sokol Greater Cleveland, Sokol New York, Sokol Washington DC and member from Denver, CO.
- There were 131 individual participants, plus spectators.
- All events went well.
- Still going through financial matters. Official numbers will come out soon to be presented at the next ASO BOI meeting.
- Number of participants by event: Curling, 38; Friday Social, 63; Trampoline, 26; Roller Skating, 53; Volleyball, 42; Bowling, 58; New Year's Eve party, 79; and Farewell social, 41.
- It was noted that the Budget and Finance Committee did not budget money for the next Winter Slet. Waiting to see final outcome to determine if this is feasible.

District Directors Annual Report Template Update

- An updated District Directors Annual Report Template was provided for review to the ASO-BOI.
- Comment about the template: Instead of using gymnastically active in first line, it should be called physical activity.
- District reports should include activities from each individual unit, not just district activities.
- Unit should provide input for all listed areas they participate in and District Directors can then compile into one report by topic.

Collaboration Group Events

- Upcoming Youth Bowling Tournament. Bro. Yatchyshyn reported that this tournament was scheduled for the first weekend of March is going to be postponed until September or October. The Polish Falcons felt it was too late to get this together. Bro. Yatchyshyn wrote back to them saying it is not too late and he will try to get this going for March.

Three Legions for Czechoslovakia

by Br. Ed Chlanda, Sokol Museum & Library

The three Czechoslovak Legions in France, Italy and Russia of Czechs and Slovaks in 1918 were of enormous political and practical help to Masaryk during WWI (the Great War). When Masaryk had to deal with the Allies, seeking their support for a democratic new country from the impending ruins of the Austrian-Hungarian Empire, the three Legions brought attention to the cause. Readers are certainly familiar with the common greeting used among the legionnaires. It was “Nazdar!” since many had been Sokols at home. In 1917 Masaryk was the presumed leader of then just a dream of a nation. From 1914 to 1918 he had no country to claim when dealing with the representative of the Allies, and if he returned home he had already been sentenced in absentia for treason. What Masaryk did have to bring to the Allies’ table were three armies, the Czechoslovak Legions in France, Italy and Russia. The Legions assisted Masaryk, Benes and Stefanik in the creation in 1918 of a new republic, rising from the destruction of an empire.

The Allied countries that had Czechoslovak Legions on their front lines (Italy, France and Russia) all supported the formation of Czechoslovakia in 1918, as did Britain and the USA. Masaryk, Stefanik and Benes achieved this in part thanks to those three legions of Czechs and Slovaks, with many Sokols in their ranks. What did gymnastics at Sokol give you? Courage in the heart, strength in the arms, and the nation in the mind. The Legionnaires all understood that maxim then, and it carried them through the war. They served in the most desperate times, in the trenches of France, the Alps of Italy and across Russia. The Sokol movement across the Slavic provinces of the empire had given them discipline, physical fitness, morale, and a yearning for democracy. It was not “incidental” that under the Emperor Franz Joseph of the Austrian-Hungarian Empire Sokols addressed each other as “brother” without regard to social rank. Bohemia and Slovakia were provinces of the Austrian-Hungarian Empire that ruled over Central and Southern Europe with a heavy hand. The Turners in Germany were similarly viewed as suspect in their monarchical homeland for their progressive, democratic views.

Funding was needed for the political and military efforts. At times it was illegal in the “neutral” US to support any of the combatants, but it was done anyway in cash, with Sokols as the “bag men” carrying cash contributions from Sokols and immigrant groups across America.

In WWI the polyglot Slavs of draft age were drafted into the Austrian-Hungarian Army, and were taught a minimal number of military commands in a language they otherwise mostly did not understand. Naturally, the Czechs and Slovaks were not the best of drafted soldiers to support an empire that oppressed them culturally and politically. Many were captured or just deserted. Indeed the 28th Regiment from Prague deserted in formation to the ire of the empire. There was a wartime joke recounted by Prof. Claire Nolte in European Culture in the Great War (Cambridge University Press) “Three soldiers, one French, one German, and one Czech all die at the same time and appear at the pearly gates. St. Peter asks them why they fought in the Great War. The French soldier says ‘For the Republic and the Nation!’ The German says ‘For the Emperor and the Fatherland!’ The Czech soldier says ‘For eight Kreutzer’s a day.’” Why did they desert, or get captured and then rejoin the war? No mystery, but with clear risks. Under the Geneva Convention of 1905, POWs that turned against their “country” (officially the Austrian-Hungarian Empire), were traitors, and many were hanged when captured.

The POWs in Russia became the famed Czech/Slovak “Družina”, first comprised mostly of émigrés living then in Russia that helped save the day for the Russians in the battle of Zborov. “Družina” translations vary from troupe, band (of artists), clique, to even gang or family, but easiest understood here as a “Legion.” After the overthrow of the Czar in 1917 Masaryk visited with the many prisoners of war in Russia, encouraging them to join the Družina, and stirred their passion for a free democratic Czechoslovakia. Masaryk’s portfolio still lacked a country, but he now had three legions. They were one of Masaryk’s bargaining chips in dealing with the Allies to form a new nation with disputed borders.

In France there were the Czech and Slovak volunteers, including over 2,000 from America. You can see the plaque at Sokol New York that lists the volunteers to the Czech Army then, before the US joined in the war. I am sure that at many of the remaining Sokol lodges across America today there are similar plaques. Unfortunately, lost today are the plaques and histories of the more than one hundred Sokol units that faded away in recent decades. When those units and lodges faded away, the histories mostly disappeared. We can only wish they had left us their histories, photos, their plaques.

- Polish Falcons Zlot new location. Will be held in Detroit, MI area, July 29 to August 5, 2018.
- Summer Camp in conjunction with Zlot. Some discussion regarding this possibility; no decision.
- Youth Leadership Weekend. Bro. D. Bajek reported about the upcoming Polish Falcons youth leadership weekend on February 23-25, 2018 in Pittsburgh, PA. Several American Sokol members are interested in attending along with a few Sokol USA members. The cost is $200/person and includes room and board. Sis Fiordelis to request approval for budget money to send potentially six students and 2-3 Leaders to participate in this event.

International Meeting for Sokol Instructors

- This meeting will be held in Prague, July 7-14, 2018. There are at least three people from American Sokol that are interested in attending.

-Sis. M. Cushing will look into the $3,600 grant money that was to be used for getting people from Europe to our course and use it towards attendance for these participants in Prague.

Stewards of Children Under Safe Sport Committee

- Discussion followed regarding Safe Sport Certification from USOC. Due to the sexual misconduct charges and allegations we felt it was critical that we provide information on how to safeguard our units, coaches and gymnasts. USAG professional members have to get this certification in order to be on a USAG sanction meet floor. This information will be published in the Directors Newsletter stating that the ASO BOI recommends all instructors are to take this course/certification. The United States Olympic Committee is providing this certification at no charge.

BOI School Board SOPs

-At the last Executive Board meeting Sis Fiordelis presented five SOPs for approval. All were approved with two have minor changes.

-The Instructor School Graduation Ceremony one added the statement that National Executive Board and Board of Governor members to be invited to attend graduation.

-For the SOP on Cell Phone usage at the school, question came up in regards what other schools/camps policy stated about this subject. Sis Fiordelis contacted several groups with none providing written policy but one indicated they collected cell phones at start of class/camp and students received back at end.

-Since our school is for two-weeks, cell phones are collected, tagged and bagged at beginning of school (parents are notified as part of registration packet), cell phone are returned to students at specific times for them to call home.

-Liability of phones was concern so log of taking and returning of phone indicating condition of them was developed and added to SOP.

- SOP for Weekend Staff Meetings was reviewed and approved at the BOI meeting and will be sent to the Executive Board for their approval at their January meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

Maryann Fiordelis

the over 2,000 volunteers from America who joined the Czechoslovak Legion in France before the US entered the war. When Masaryk, a Sokol too, visited them in Darney, France in 1919 he ended his speech with “Nazdar!” And reminded them of the difficult road ahead. The troops answered with a thunderous Nazdar! And it is noted that during the war, when circumstances permitted, Sokols in all the legions did gymnastic exercises from their Sokol days back home.

In Italy, an ally in WWI, the Czechoslovak Legion was formed mostly by deserters, and prisoners of war, including my two Sokol uncles from Bohemia. Jan Papánek was the official assigned by Masaryk to Rome to guide the legion in Italy. In 1948, after the communist coup in Czechoslovakia, he remained in the US and became the founder of the American Fund for Czechoslovak Refugees, now AFCSL.org. See The Great War's Forgotten Front for a memoir. My stepfather was a draftee then and he would tell the almost funny story of marching off toward the Italian Alps with the Austrian-Hungarian army. In every little village the local priest came out to bless the troops and cannons. After a few villages, he realized with fear that the Allied army in Italy was coming toward him, being blessed by the Pope and Cardinals along the way! Mom downplayed the story and said he was always safe as a cook for the battalion. Well, every old Sokol will have some stories.

In Russia, the legionaries continued to serve years after the Armistice of 1918. To know why and how I read the history of the legions in Russia, during the Bolshevik Revolution. It was the most dramatic and significant in historical terms. I cannot do justice to any of the legions' histories, so please add the books noted below to your Sokol Libraries. There were Czechs and Slovak émigrés in Russia when the war started. They formed the famed Družina augmented after a time by the Czech/Slovak prisoners of war (POWs) when the Czar and his advisors finally assented to having these anti-monarchical soldiers help them.

The performance of the Družina at the Battle of Zborov convinced the military advisors to the Czar, and then the Bolsheviks, to expand the Družina with the POWs, despite some Geneva Conventions rules. Well the Bolsheviks had less qualms about them, expanding the legion with thousands of POWs, but Lenin later came to regret their decision. When the Bolsheviks made peace, the legion wanted to return to the Western Front and was to be sent indirectly via Siberia, across the Pacific from Vladivostok and then to France. It went all wrong during their transit to Vladivostok. Russia was in chaos. By then the Allies were wary of the Bolsheviks and encouraged the legion to remain in control of the Trans-Siberian Railroad until they could decide on a political resolution to the Russian revolution. This indecision delayed their homecoming. Paul in NY says his granddad did not return home until years after the war ended. Guess why? He must have gone home crossing Russia/Siberia to Vladivostok, then crossing the Pacific to San Diego, then crossing America to sail back to Europe. A favorite history of the time is Dreams of a Great Small Nation. The author will give a talk at the Bohemian Benevolent and Literary Association, NYC in 2018 to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of Czechoslovakia.

Thanks to Claire Nolte, Kevin J. McNamarra, Br. Charles Bednar, and others for their helpful comments.

History of All - Sokol Slets

The first Sokol Slet (Falcon gathering in English) was held in 1882 in Prague. The name “slet” comes from the Czech word for "a flocking of birds" (Czech plural: slety). The same word exists or can be synthesized from common Slavic roots in other Slavic languages. It refers to a mass gymnastics festival that became a grand tradition within the Sokol movement, which spread across Central Europe along with other Slavic movements such as the political movement of Pan-Slavism. The first and subsequent slets included an elaborate welcoming ceremony at the train station, mass demonstrations, gymnastics competitions, speeches, and theatrical events, open to members of all Sokols.

Lift Every Voice

Written by Sis. Hallie Soulides

February is a time for celebration of a great number of things including Valentine's Day, President's Day, Abraham Lincoln's birthday, and African American History. Nearly all of us would recognize the name Francis Scott Key, the author of the poem and song "The Star Spangled Banner" which was adopted as the official U.S. National Anthem in 1814. Fewer may recognize the name James Weldon Johnson, a musician, writer, and high school principal from Florida. In 1900, he wrote a poem entitled "Lift Every Voice and Sing". With a composer named Rosamond Johnson, his brother, the poem was put to song and performed by school children on President Lincoln's birthday. James went on to be a songwriter, a U.S. foreign service officer, a published author, and in 1920, the national organizer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). "Lift Every Voice and Sing" was adopted as the official song of the NAACP, and is commonly referred to as the African American National Anthem.
